

Lung Health Promotion Centre at The Alfred

Background

The Lung Health Promotion is part of the Department of Allergy Immunology and Respiratory Medicine at The Alfred. It was established in response to an expressed need by health professionals for education programs in asthma and respiratory disease management. The Centre has been providing education programs and acting as a resource to health professionals since 1991, when the first Asthma Educators Course was conducted.

The Centre is self funded and is the only education centre, dedicated to education of health professionals in lung disease management in Australia.

The Centre was established and is managed by Adrienne James who has a background in nursing, health education and health promotion.

Product/Service Information

The Centre offers high quality, evidence based, holistic education programs and support to health professionals in the area of lung disease management. The programs are held on a regular basis which is a great advantage to health professionals who want to be assured they can find and attend a program within their own time frame and can attend multiple programs so that they become more expert in the field.

The Centre provides:

- Short courses and seminars on a range of topics for health professionals.
- Tailored programs developed around the needs of specific groups
- Provision of information, educational materials and resources for health professionals.
- A central point of contact for networking and information regarding issues to do with education, personnel and resources for educators and other health professionals in this field
- A range of resources including posters, dvd's, models and books to support patient education in lung disease management

The Centre offers education, support, regular updating, information, resources and provides a central point of contact for networking and information regarding issues to do with education, personnel and resources for health professionals in the field of respiratory health

The Centre is well recognized as an education provider of excellence

Please contact us on 9076 2382 for any queries or information about programs that may be useful for health professionals working in General Practice. You may like to look at our website www.lunghealth.org

Adrienne James

Manager

Lung Health Promotion Centre at The Alfred